

Section I

20 marks

Attempt Questions 1 -4

Allow about 45 minutes for this section

Read the texts on pages 2-8 of the Stimulus Booklet carefully and then answer the questions in the spaces provided. These spaces provide guidance for the expected length of response.

Your answer will be assessed on how well you:

- demonstrate understanding of human experiences in texts
- analyse, explain and assess the ways human experiences are represented in texts

Question 1 (4 marks) 4 marks - well done

Text 1 — Speech

Explain how Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie addresses the impact of challenges in her life.

Adichie represents the impacts of challenges as minimal due to the effort she puts in to bypass them. She explores the challenge of personal desires with her families' expectation "But I did what I was supposed to do and I went into medical school" using first person narrative voice to make the reader feel the pressure of her filial expectations, revealing that social expectations create challenges that divert decisions. However she overcomes this challenge through personal ~~effort~~ choice to try "I took the American exams and got a scholarship to come to the US" where the US becomes a symbol of freedom that marks her separation from her parents' expectations, this reveals that through applying oneself, individuals can gain agency over their ~~choices~~ outcomes despite the challenges they are faced with. Furthermore, 17 Ditchie reflects on the challenge of her father's kidnapping. "We were talking to threatening strangers on the phone, begging" using the ~~usual imagery~~ of the auditory imagery of the confronting phone call to reveal how through facing your fears, you ultimately gain agency.

Question 1 continues on page 3

Question 1 (continued)

Section I continues on page 4

Question 3 (3 marks) 3 marks - well done

Text 3 — Feature Article

Explain why Richard Glover concludes, "Could it be that lockdown has finally sent me mad, or could Lockdown House Hunt, and its endless accompanying searches, prove a winner for the times?"

Richard Glover explores the ~~del~~ strangeness of the human condition when faced with boredom, suggesting that "he's" ~~has~~ been sent "mad" because of ^{his} ~~the~~ ~~strange~~ behaviours unorthodox behaviours to cure boredom. Richard Glover describes "what if the current owners of the place ~~had~~ have failed to keep a well trimmed-lawn --- I now had an accurate address to ~~what~~ ~~into~~ google." ~~where~~ ~~coming~~ where his use of colloquial language reveals the trivial and ultimately meaningless nature of his pursuit, ~~and~~ underscoring how boredom pushes people to do normally strange things, wherein lies his "madness". Furthermore he juxtaposes this idea with "could Lockdown House Hunt ~~and~~ and its ~~endless~~ prove a winner for the times?" using a rhetorical question to reveal that in the moment, ~~seemingly~~ seemingly random behaviours become a fun and exciting exercise that is the antithesis of madness.

Section I continues on page 6

Question 4 (5 marks)

4 marks - well done, need examples to be more elaborate

Text 4 — Non-Fiction Extract

How does the Non-Fiction extract convey emotions about human relationships?

Chris Knapp conveys emotions of love, passion and empathy using the anecdote of meeting his extended family in prison. Knapp begins "The week began with ~~the~~ Melania Trump's memorable observation... also begins with an email from my mother's sister" juxtaposing a figure of high political power with one with none, revealing that the love between family ultimately triumphs global ~~political~~ politics. Furthermore he continues "~~It~~ ~~Spends~~ ~~the~~ ~~aimless~~ ~~was~~ "Spends the afternoon in aimless wandering, in a section of the city" using the visual description of aimless wandering to reveal that the ~~excitement~~ emotions of excitement and joy that arise from human connection ~~ultimately~~ overarches ~~over~~ the meaninglessness of the tasks we do every day. Furthermore, he explores the emotion of longing "I'd have liked very much to discuss the matter at length with Zadie Smith, who by that time was long gone" using the juxtaposition between Zadie's absence and his own longing to reveal that human ~~is~~ relationships have emotions on both sides that can oppose each other. Ben Knapp continues "we discussed my uncle's work as a test-prep tutor in an anti-poverty ~~to~~ organisation" using the juxtaposition between ^{the privilege of} a test-prep tutor and anti-poverty to reveal how human connections can evoke empathy through ~~changes in circumstances~~ differing circumstances, revealing that emotion and empathy becomes a powerful tool that allows ~~oppress~~ individuals to uplift others conditions and ease the pain and struggle that others go through as a result of bad luck and systemic disadvantage.

Section I continues on page 7

Question 4 (continued)

Section I continues on page 8

Text 5 — Poem

Analyse how the poet conveys the human desire for connection.

Megan O'Rourke explores the ^{innate} human desire for connection ~~as~~ through ~~the~~ ~~explor~~ exploration of ~~longing~~ the suffering that comes with being alone. The poem starts "winter loneliness, It's a long night of snow and snowiness" where the cold becomes a symbol for the loneliness that comes with being alone, revealing that the absence of connection catalyses craving for human connection. O'Rourke continues "but I'm thinking if you can hear me / waiting you might want to visit," where the disjointed structure of the sentence becomes a ~~symbol~~ reveals that our own desire for the continual flow of the sentence mirrors that of human desire for connection with others, revealing that it is an inescapable reality that catalyses destructive emotions when ignored. Furthermore O'Rourke describes "up stairs is now, not tomorrow's tomorrow" using temporal descriptions to reveal the immediacy of human desire for connection that permeates into every instance of our lives.

End of Section I

49 : 02 + 10 min reading.